The psychopathic laboratory cannot do more than sample the cases that come before the various criminal branch courts of the municipal court. There are about 125,000 such cases in a year which have to do with offenses against city ordinances and state laws.

Those cases go to the laboratory when the offenders seems to the judge to be a b n ormal, or where the natture of the subjected to Tests. crime seems to argue an abnormal mind. Tests such as those of Binet determine only whether the subject is feeble-minded or not. In case of the presence of some form of mental trouble Dr. Hickson determines the fact by means of other and more technical methods. In fact, he finds that pure feeble-mindedness is only one of the less frequent brain troubles that are associated with crime.
